Professional and industry experience

Tom is a Principal in KPMG's Tax Controversy Services practice. His practice covers all areas of client representation before the IRS, from rulings and voluntary disclosures through examination, Appeals, and post-Appeals dispute resolution, with an emphasis on international tax matters. He also assists firm clients on general tax consulting matters.

Tom's growing team works on behalf of clients with IRS revenue agents, revenue officers, specialists, IRS counsel attorneys, managers, Appeals Officers, and other revenue authorities throughout New England, across the country, and around the world.

Before joining KPMG, Tom practiced as a senior attorney in the Large and Midsize Business division of the IRS Office of Chief Counsel in Boston. While with the IRS Office of Chief Counsel, he served as U.S. Counsel to the Joint International Tax Shelter Information Centre.

Tom is an active member of his community. He serves as a Council Director of the American Bar Association Tax Section. He served two terms as a member and Chair of the Wayland Finance Committee. He was also elected to two terms on the Board of Finance in Chester, Connecticut.
